

NEVILLE BRODY

Neville Brody is a world famous graphic designer, typographer, art director and brand strategist.

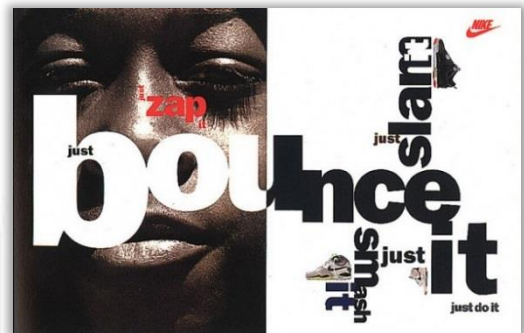

Neville Brody was born in Southgate, London on 23 April 1957.

He attended Michenden School and studied A-Level Art.

Queen's head sideways on a postage stamp design.

In 1975 Brody went on to do a Fine Art foundation course at Hornsey College of Art. In autumn 1976, Brody started a three-year B.A. course in graphics at the London College of Printing, Brody's college tutors thought his work was too experimental and he was almost thrown out of college for putting the

When he finished college he worked as a graphic designer, designing record covers. In 1980 he went on to become art director for 'The Face', a British music and fashion magazine.

In 1994, Brody started, 'Research Studios', this is a multi-disciplinary design company which creates advertising, packaging, and company branding for a variety of clients such as Sony PlayStation, Samsung and Nike. The company has offices in Paris, Berlin, Tokyo, Barcelona and New York.